

July 10, 2014

GOING OUT

Independence eats

Bastille Day.

Enjoy France's most lauded contribution to the world: food.

We had ours on the Fourth of July, now it's time for France's equivalent on July 14. Go out and show your solidarity with the French in overthrowing the monarchy by eating some Paris-worthy grub.

The Clicquot Mail Truck at Bagatelle

A Petanque tournament, oysters and a glass of Veuve Clicquot is how Bastille Day should be celebrated. Bagatelle is throwing the indoor equivalent of a French lawn party, with the Clicquot crew standing by to serve bubbly in the most of-the-moment way: from a food truck. 1 Little West 12th St., 212-488-2110